

ARCHITECTURAL DIGEST

February 27, 2017

Lenny Kravitz Designed This Apartment Building in New York City

The singer's firm took the reins in this building located in his own neighborhood

TEXT BY MELISSA MINTON PHOTOGRAPHY BY REDUNDANT PIXEL STUDIOS

When celebrities venture off their traditional career paths, they typically gravitate toward designing products like clothing, shoes, or makeup. Lenny Kravitz, however, went in a different direction. Known for his eclectic style, he is also the principal of Kravitz Design, which was founded in 2003, and creates everything from wallpaper to rugs to furniture. Now you can own a home designed by the Grammy Award–winning singer, reports Curbed. Six New York condos are on the market, with interiors designed by Kravitz, ranging from $1.7 million to $5.9 million and boasting up to three bedrooms and three and a half baths. In the apartments, the first residential designs by the firm, you'll find a neutral color palette and natural materials throughout. All of the kitchens feature custom, matte-white-lacquer cabinetry with integrated Gaggenau appliances. The yet-to-be-completed building is located in a Manhattan neighborhood Kravitz knows well—NoLiTa, where he currently lives—and was designed by architect Andre Kikoski. The building will include amenities such as a 24-hour concierge, automated parking, a gym, a rooftop terrace, and a private courtyard.

<http://bit.ly/2m8RVwd>